

Facing Lawsuit, Ex-Judge Urges Court to Strike Law to Protect Child Sexual Abuse Victims

LAW law.com/nationallawjournal/sites/nationallawjournal/2017/12/18/facing-lawsuit-ex-judge-urges-court-to-strike-law-to-protect-child-sexual-abuse-victims
By Cogan Schneier | December 18, 2017 at 02:36 PM

Former Chief Judge Richard Roberts, of the District Court for the District of Columbia. Photo by Diego M. Radzinski/ALM.

As the retirement of Ninth Circuit Judge Alex Kozinski amid sexual harassment allegations sends shockwaves through legal circles, a woman who claims she was the victim of another judge is fighting for her right to sue him.

This content has been archived. It is available exclusively through our partner LexisNexis®.

Cogan Schneier

Cogan Schneier is a Washington, D.C.-based litigation reporter covering D.C. courts, national litigation trends, the Justice Department and the federal judiciary. She is the author of Trump Watch, an email briefing that covers the Trump administration and its imprint on the law.

